A Story of Survival, Surrender, and the Unshakable Light of Hope

In No Rain, No Roses, author and speaker Cindy Bozell invites you to sit across the table, coffee in hand, and walk with her through the most vulnerable moments of her life.

With raw honesty, painful truth, and even touches of humor, Cindy opens up about childhood trauma, a season of atheism, years of emotional and physical abuse, and spiritual wounds inflicted by both people and institutions. But this isn't just a story of pain—it's a story of hope.

Cindy shares her darkest valleys not to dwell in the past, but to shine a light for those still walking through their own. This book is for the woman who feels invisible, trapped, or unworthy. It's for the one who's ready to give up.

Through every chapter, Cindy weaves in the message at the heart of her calling: you are not alone, and there is still hope, because even roses need the rain.
